THE ANNUAL VOLUMES OF AMERICAN BOOK - PRICES CURRENT

Although the FIVE YEAR INDEX to ABC is valuable in itself, its primary purpose, naturally, is as a key to the fuller descriptive data for each entry as given in the preceding annual volumes of the AMERICAN BOOK-PRICES CURRENT. The annual volume of ABC is the only one of its kind to offer sufficient explanation of the prices recorded . . . entries are arranged for quick use and readability . . . prices are recorded on the even dollar . . . all titles selling for less than $5.00 are very sensibly omitted.

You can rely on ABC

These volumes are well-known for their superior editing—during the war years by Colton Storm, prior to that, and now once again, by Edward Lazare. ABC is backed by over a half century of experience and tradition. Point by point comparison with any similar volume clearly reveals why ABC has retained leadership in this field.

DISCUSSIONS OF MANUSCRIPTS, MAPS, and PRINTS.

By Colton Storm and Howard Peckham Fall 1946

Approx. 320 Pages, 6 x 9, Cloth, Illustrated, Index $4.00

This volume gives an informal survey of book-collecting from Asurbanipal to Hogan. What is a rare book, who has collected them in the past, why collect them, collectible books in several fields, how to plan your own collection, how and where to buy, how to understand the science of bibliography—all entertainingly and authoritatively told by Mr. Storm of the Clements Library, Ann Arbor, and Mr. Peckham, of the Indiana Historical Bureau.

FOREWORD

THE AMERICAN BOOK-PRICES CURRENT INDEX covers sales from September, 1940 through May, 1945. It is patterned after its predecessor for 1933-1940; its successors will be issued at five-year intervals. These volumes are indexes. They are not substitutes for the ANNUAL volumes. Prices of rare books depend so much on edition, binding, physical condition, and provenance (matters rarely recorded in the INDEX) that the ANNUAL volumes always ought to be consulted in evaluating rare books.

The arrangement of the material is that of the ANNUAL volumes. The items are listed alphabetically according to authors. Anonymous works fall under the first words of their titles. A few subject headings for anonymous works have been used, such as "New York," "Great Britain," etc., but I think cross references from titles have been made in all such cases. Under each heading, the titles are arranged alphabetically, except for collected sets and complete works, which are placed last.

Short titles have been used throughout. These are followed by date of publication and, in a few instances where it is especially important, place of publication. The year of sale appears next within parentheses; this is followed by the price fetched. A comma separates the various years of sale. Successive editions of a title are set off in individual paragraphs; ordinary and limited editions have been distinguished in the same fashion. Many important books in parts, wrappers, or boards have been segregated from ordinary copies and placed in separate paragraphs; some notable copies have been indicated by descriptive words in parentheses following the prices. A very few abbreviations have been used; all of them are familiar to users of the ANNUAL volumes. Broad sides and maps have been placed in separate sections following the autographs.

FOREWORD

The five years represented by this volume were extremely important and interesting years in the history of rare book prices. The approximately 52,000 prices of books recorded deserve careful study of all persons who must follow rare book prices closely. A large number of curious conclusions are possible from such study. There are two which clamor for attention. Both of them are so obvious that I hesitate to set them down. The first is that over a five-year period rare book prices have risen sharply. Rare book history tells us that such rises are generally dangerous. The second point is that large numbers of books are moving out of the second-hand range into the antiquarian-rare field. This is heartening news, for it means that the numbers of collectible books are increasing; it probably also means that the number of collectors is increasing.

I cannot close work on this volume without expressing warmest thanks to my assistants. My wife and my daughter have been very patient and very helpful; so, too, have been Mrs. Frances R. Kepner and Mrs. Blanche W. Bell. All of them have assisted in both the compiling and the proof reading. The mistakes are mine. I also wish to thank Mrs. Anne Richter for her several years of helpfulness as my liaison with the R. R. Bowker Co. Mrs. Richter is the ideal publisher's representative.
